

Jordan seeks nuclear power program

As intelligent nations should

Business Portal
January 21, 2007

Jordan's King Abdullah has said he would like his country to develop a nuclear energy programme according to an interview with an Israeli newspaper cited by the AP. Abdullah has previously sought a nuclear free Middle east but he now feels the situation has changed. The US is believed to be supportive but Israeli analysts do not feel the kingdom has the resources to develop the programme.