

Areva wins MOX fuel contract from Japan's Chubu

Neither BelgoNucleaire nor BNFL are even competitors these days.

Forbes

March 13, 2006

Areva said it has won a contract from Japan's Chubu Electric Co to supply mixed oxide fuel (MOX) for the Hamaoka nuclear power plant, in a deal whose financial terms were not disclosed.

The MOX will be fabricated using recycled plutonium from Chubu's nuclear energy operations, with six production runs scheduled between now and 2020.

'This commercial success confirms Areva's position as the leading manufacturer of MOX,' the company said.